Woodstock will vote on equipment, buildings and growth ordinances

At annual Town Meeting on Monday. Woodstock voters will have a number of articles to consider in addition to the 32 to 37 percent budget increase recommended by the Budget Committee and Board of Selectmen.

The town's Planning Board has recommended the adoption of a number of growth-centrol ordinances, including a comprehensive set of subdivision ordinances.

The board has also proposed a one-acre minimum lot size requirement for singlefamily dwellings and recommended that lots with shore frontage be required to have at least 200 feet of frontage. Another ordinance proposed by the Planning Board requires septic systems to be in place within 30 days after a building is occupied.

Voters will also be asked to approve the hiring of a part-time clerk for the Planning Board. The future of the former Woodstock school complex is the subject of two articles: the first authorizing its conversion to a site for the town garage, the second authorizing the construction of a read into the complex. Voters will also be asked to raise $8,000 to be put toward the cost of building a fence around the ballfield. The selectmen have recommended that voters approve the request, which originated with the town's Recreation Committee, but the Budget Committee has withheld a recommendation pending the receipt of

Department of Transportation. The two boards concur, however, in recommending that $35,382 be put toward rebuilding Rumford Avenue.

In other major budget items, the Highway Department has asked for $60,000 for a new truck and plow, and the selectmen and Budget Committee have recommended that an additional $20,000 be put toward renovations of the town office building.

Copies of Woodstock's annual report for 1987 are available in the town office: however, the warrant in the printed report does not include a number of changes made by the selectmen after the report was sent to the printer. A separate, amended version of the warrant is also available at the town office.

This year's Town Meeting will be held at the new Woodstock School.

pieces and keep the town functioning. "We were really not prepared for all this," Mr. Hooper said, "even though we've known for six weeks that we'd have to do it."

In a letter to Mrs. Mersereau formally informing her of their reasons for not renewing the contract, the selectmen cited 13 "problems we have become aware of," most involving lack of timely action in dealing with financial matters and in keeping financial records. Earlier, Selectman Ethel Davis also criticized Mrs. Mersereau for "constant delays in communicating with the selectmen and committees."

The decision not to renew the contract was made at an emergency selectmen's meeting Monday afternoon. Mrs. Mersereau was present but only took notes and did not attempt to defend her job performance.

"With the prices people are willing to pay for land now, you can't blame landowners for selling or subdividing, but we need to balance growth against the quality of life that makes people want to live here in the first place."

Mr. Corriveau said he expects no major opposition to the moratorium. "Everybody seems to be on the same track," he said.

Town Tax Collector Beverley Corriveau said that if voters pass all the items on this year's warrant they will be raising "about the same amount of money as last year" through taxation. Last year Gilead raised $93,080.

This year's annual Town Meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday, March 26 at the Town Hall.

To the Voters of Woodstock

In 1986 we voted to upgrade our town government, intending to provide better management, cost control and town services. The result, instead, is proposed budget increases at rates which will double our taxes every 214 to 21/2 years.

We do need a more professional and effective town government but it should be carefully tailored to a town the size of Woodstock. I have the training and management experience to help us move along to a solution that is practical and that we can afford.

I will be a candidate for selectman March 28.

A group of citizens had petitioned the selectmen earlier this month to do something to alleviate the situation, which they termed dangerous as well as annoying, with traffic reduced to oneway in front of The Bethel Inn's driveway. The selectmen found, indeed, that the thoroughfare was narrowed and in danger of being choked if there had been piles of snow on the roadsides. But the board was split about taking public action on what was viewed by some as a private problem—that is, a problem of The Inn. Chairman Arlan Jodrey said, "We could say, yeah, we'll ban the parking-but where are they go-

"Hi, Mom!"

Like a player sitting on the bench but wanting to get into the glare of the nationwide TV cameras, the state Legislature has decided Maine should have its own presidential primary. This will bring the state the attention of candidates and the nation's press-attention which is now hogged by neighboring New Hampshire.

Presently, voters in both major party organizations in the state make their presidential preferences known through party caucuses. There is no suggestion that the results of a primary would be any different from the results of the caucuses—only that the process would be more noticeable.

While not as compelling as a statewide primary election, party caucuses have the advantage of bringing people into the party organizations, which will be deciding lots more issues than who the party's standard-bearer should be. For example, there is the matter of a party's platform, with ideas percolating upward from town caucuses to state conventions to national conventions.

Party caucuses also have the advantage of forcing people to commit themselves to working for the candidate of their choice. A voter who is willing to go to a polling booth and pull a lever but unwilling to work for the candidate of his or her choice is not as good an indication of a candidate's strength as one who is willing to sit in a caucus and argue for a particular candidate—and then work for the party's candidate in the homestretch.

Party caucuses also do not have the great disadvantage of costing the state money. The Legislature—always willing to lay more burdens on the taxpayer-authorized spending whatever it costs to run a primary election. It costs the state nothing for the two parties to hold

If the Legislature wants more exposure for the state, it would be better to simply take a full-page ad in the New York Times announcing who won in the caucuses. It would be lots cheaper than holding a primary election. The governor will do well to veto the bill authorizing a presidential primary.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

"The witches say, "We are weird."-

When we students came to Mr. Thompson's classroom, we entered a theater of the English language. He was the principal player-and producer and director—and we were the supporting cast. There we reveled in the drama and wonder of our mother tongue, as we wrote and spoke and listened and watched.

Most of all, I remember the writing: word pictures ("connotations"), precis, copying exercises, reviews and themes—all culminating in the "grandfather theme." Only much later, after I had become a teacher of sorts, did I realize that if we had to write something every class day, he had to correct something from each of us, everyday, and how he did: fast and accurately, often sputtering about the glasses his best friend and fellow faculty member, Gayle Foster, at long last coaxed him in-

I feel him correcting me now: no errors allowed; include everything, but only what you need; leave nothing out. And I see that little smile, that pursing of the lips and the corner of the mouth turning up, when he came across a phrase or e-ry. thought he liked.

"I'm not here to teach you grammar," he informed us English 2A students right off the bat. "I don't worry about you Bethel students," he went on, "because you've had Olive Lurvey and you know. The rest of you will just have to learn on your own!' R-e-c-e. I've got it!"

His protestations aside, he actually taught us a lot about grammar, and as we went to each class we wondered what gimmick, what ruse he would pull from his bag of pedagogic tricks, that time around. With the famous "boards" he would pull down out of the wall when he was angry with us, we learned to punctuate "out loud," "on the fly," as it were, as we read to each other what was happening next to his crazy cast of characters. (Remember the famous pianist, Steinway Baldwin?)

Mr. T's insistence on the fine points of "mechanics," those little linguistic signposts and rules of the road, was only a part of his message that this was our great language, whose traditions we were to carry on-respectfully and carefully. We learned the value of saying and writing what we meant, so that others would know what we meant to say.

"I didn't teach you how to write," he protested when we talked, years later, about the impoverished writing skills of today's students. "I simply had you write, everyday."

We Blue and Gold staffers could be dummying up the next edition and come up a bit long on space, and Mr. T. our faculty advisor, would stride to his Smith Corona and pound out, two-fingered style, a piece that, in first draft, filled the space and fit the bill, perfectly. (I was going to write, "to a 'T'.")

"R-H-Y-T-H-M. A root-tee-toot-tee-toottoot, root-toot-toot!"

With Mr. T, it was difficult to know when the acting stopped and the seriousness began. He was always "on." If he knew—if he thought—anyone was watching, he'd break into a little bit of "business," often a jerky two-step, topped with a Bronx cheer and a tweek of his nose. After coming up with a particularly "choice" remark-his usual practice-he'd exclaim, to no one in particular, "I've got a million of 'em!" and punctuate that with a slap of his thigh or table or whatever was handy. He was "on" even when he wasn't seen: prompting in loud stage whispers and ceremoniously sounding bells and buzzers as he directed the one-act plays from the wings.

"You write with a pen on s-t-a-t-i-o-n-

Not only did we students write a great deal, we read a lot, too. With an almost offhand remark he put me on the trail of the impecable style of 'The New Yorker," and he seemed to take for granted that we would at least browse through "The Atlantic Monthly," "Harper's" and the "Monitor." while we became acquainted with the classics in British and American literature. Along the way we learned so much about style and content and clarity, as we went from Chaucer to Lillian Hellman and E.B. White, while passing through Shakespeare and Emerson.

"Honor be to Mudjekeewis!" We students were fortunate to have Mr. T as a teacher, and I was doubly blessed to know him at Keewaydin he had first gone in 1928, and where I worked as his assistant in the camp store during four seasons.

It was there that I learned to call him "Dave."

"Look," he told me at the beginning of our first season together, "at Gould you have to say 'Mr. Thompson' or 'Mr. T.' but up here in God's country it's just plain 'Dave'!" Like the simple, elegant English sentence he championed, he could be clear, direct and "no-nonsense."

The no-nonsense part had begun a long time ago, in Lewiston. He spoke so respectfully and affectionately of his father and mother, and of Bates, and of Selectmen conceded that the Inn had built dozens of parking spaces at the convention center and allowed everyone to use them. But they also pointed out that when 300 conventioneers are in town, the number of parking spaces is insufficient.

To dramatize how bad the parking situation is, Chief Wight said he recent ly gave out 35 parking tickets in town in a single weekend. (One of the offending vehicles was a tour bus, and the chief had to stand on the cruiser in order to get the ticket under the bus' windshield wiper, he reported.)

In the end, the board—on a motion by Selectman Haines-voted 4-0 to prohibit parking on the westerly side of Broad Street, from the Common to Paradise. (Selectman Victor Coolidge was absent.)

In a related matter, the selectmen agreed to Town Manager Rodney Lynch's suggestion that the fine for illegal parking be raised from the current $5 to $25. The present fine is simply charging what a parking lot would charge and is not severe enough to keep people from illegally parking.

The selectmen also gave the town manager the authorization he desired to have a new engine and new rear end housing installed in the town's 1980 GMC truck. The estimated cost is $7,000.

In other matters, the selectmen appointed Marcia Denison, Monique Rolfe, Linda Saunders, Laurie Vogt and Ken Bohr to the newly formed Affordable Housing Committee.

A note from the publisher

I was away last week, visiting my parents in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. As is usual at this time of year, it was packed with college students—taking a break from studies. South Florida continues to amaze me every time I go down there. There are always more-and flashier-cars, more-and bigger-buildings, and new-and more expensive-restaurants. We visited one owned by Burt Reynolds, right at the harbor entrance to the city. You get a ringside view of the waterborne cops checking on possible dope smugglers as you eat your dinner. You want to stay away from the wine list if possible—a minimum of $13 (per glass!), Apparently I couldn't adjust quickly enough to the warm weather and so immediately came down with a bad cold. It kept me away from the ocean most of the week, which wasn't actually a bad thing because it gave me a chance to do some reading.

I spent most of the week reading a 500-page chronicle of the the Jewish ghetto in Lodz, Poland, during World War II. Like the better-known Warsaw ghettoand dozens of smaller ghettos set up by the Germans during the war-the Lodz ghetto served two purposes. It segregated the Jews from the general population so their properties could be confiscated and so they would all be handy for eventual slaughter, and it provided a ready and skilled labor pool for workshops that supplied the German war machine.

Contrary to Nazi propaganda that the Jews made their living by buying and selling products made by others, the eastern European Jews were blue-collar workers-as well as businessmen and professionals. Lodz, a city begun by Jews in the 18th century, was the largest textile manufacturing metropolis in eastern Europe and was home to about a quarter of a million Jews when the Germans invaded Poland in 1939. (My grandfather was a worker in a textile factory in Lodz, but he left, with his family, during World War I.)

When the Germans forced the remaining Jews of Lodz into a closed ghetto, in 1940, there were still about 150,000 of them. When the Russians liberated Lodz, in the fall of 1944, there were just a few hundred Jews left in the ghetto. Like the Jews from the other ghettos, the vast majority had been shipped to the extermination camps where the Germans had devised the deadly "final solution" to "the Jewish problem. In reading the day-to-day chronicle of life in the ghetto, I was struck by how inhumanly clever the Germans were. Early-on in their control of the Jews, they would stage spur-of-the-moment, public mass executions in the ghetto in order to impress on the minds of the inhabitants that it was futile to resist. At times they would swoop into the ghetto and ship off the thousands of old, infirm, or underage inhabitants to the death camps in order to save on feeding them. And when the

Sen. George Mitchell says:

March is Women's History Month, an opportunity for our schools to emphasize the role women have played in our nation's past and to recognize the contributions that women are making to our society, yet also to remind us of progress still to be made in reaching greater equality in the home and workplace.

The United States has come a long way since the days of Lucretia Mott, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony, the few women of their day to speak out on issues specifically affecting women. These women brought to the forefront many issues such as voting and property control, which we take for granted today. They formulated a discussion of women's issue that would continue into this century.

Of significance is that women's studies have influenced both learning and practice far beyond the limits of "women's issues." Indeed, as the perspective of women's studies becomes more integrated into our scholarly and social learning, it is becoming evident that issues which were once dismissed as "women's issues" might be much more properly described as "people issues." Child care and domestic duties are no longer considered matters concerning and affecting only women. Family finances, big business, manual labor and the technical and scientific fields certainly are no longer related solely to the male population.

While in 1950 only 18 percent of mothers were in the labor force, today nearly 60 percent of mothers work outside of the home. While increased educational opportunities enabled many women to join the workforce, in many single-parent and two-parent families, adults are forced to work out of economic necessity. Often there is not the choice of whether women stay home with the children and men operate in the workforce. Hence, child care and family finances are no longer divided concerns, and both parents must be aware of both necessities. Child care has become a national concern, yet less than 3,000 of 6 million businesses provide child care assistance. Several bills are currently under consideration by Congress that would expand the number of child care facilities and help make the cost of child care more affordable. An issue traditionally associated with women, child care is now a matter for which men and women alike are pressing Congress and state governments to address. More women than ever before aregraduating from college and graduate schools and entering a wide variety of jobs previously viewed as male occupations. The United States has moved from a society where women were an anomaly in the fields of engineering and, medicine to where women each year make up a larger percentage of these professions.

Our country has moved from a society where women could not vote to a na-. tion where women are raising critical issues, setting the national agenda and serving in office.

It is essential that we recognize and consider the transitions and achievements of the past century. Women's History Month is a useful opportunity to seek a renewed perspective, and I encourage everyone in Maine to aca labor detail-since one never knew if tively take part in it.

Erik and Pam Nelson, of Rte. 2, Hanover, are planning an 88-unit condominium resort on approximately 15 acres of their property. The proposal will go to the Hanover Planning Board tomorrow night (Thursday). The four-season resort project, to be called The Chamberlain Resort, is planned to include four buildings of 22 units each, overlooking the groomed fields leading to the Androscoggin River. Each unit will have a south-facing balcony, and each owner will have deeded access to the river-across property presently owned by the Nelsons

Phase one of the construction schedule calls for the construction of two of the four buildings.

Also planned for the resort is a restaurant, a heated outdoor pool with a poolside cabana house, tennis courts, horseback riding trails, and connections with existing snowmobile and crosscountry ski trails. The condominium units will be most-

Mersereau ousted

"The charges are ludicrous," she said later, "but I didn't speak up at the meeting because I've learned it's just not worth trying to talk to those people." Mrs. Mersereau, who received a 5 percent pay increase on Jan. 19, claims she never received a reprimand or written warning from the board regarding her performance. The selectmen attributed the performance problems primarily to her lack of experience. But Mrs. Mersereau contended that the problems were in large part due to lack of support from the board and inconsistency in its demands. Acknowledging that she had a lot to learn on her first year on the job and had "made some mistakes," she said: "When you go to the town manager form of government you're going to have some problems. [The board is] just not ready

For example, she said, one of the items on the list of complaints was her failure to enforce a purchase-order system. "They demanded that no bills be paid without a purchase order, but when I asked George [Hooper] for a purchase order for some things he had bought he went through the roof."

Mrs. Mersereau pointed to personal animosity between her and Mr. Hooper as a major cause of her problems. "I've seen it coming with George," she said, "I've seen how he operates." For his part, Mr. Hooper characterizes himself as Mrs. Mersereau's "champion" on the board. But, he said, the situation had deteriorated to the point where at Manday's meeting "I couldn't look her in the face."

Mrs. Mersereau contends that the pro- period. blem was aggravated recently when she had to recommend that the selectmen not go ahead with actions that could have adversely affected pending litigation involving the town.

"I talked to the town attorney about a couple of things they wanted to do, and he said it was not an appropriate time," she said. 'Sometimes a town manager has to say 'wait a minute,' but George wasn't happy to be told that."

Selectmen Ethel Davis and Gary Wing both praised Mrs. Mersereau's effort and dedication to the job, but they sided with Mr. Hooper in voting unanimously not to renew her contract.

In a statement prepared for an earlier meeting, Mr. Wing wrote: "I truly believe Kathleen did try, but just didn't possess the knowledge needed." "I think Kathleen has tried very hard," Mrs. Davis said at Monday's meeting. "but as a board of selectmen we have duties and obligations to the citizens of the town." The selectmen had actually voted at an earlier meeting to fire Mrs. Mersereau effective March 18. But she responded by consulting an attorney, who wrote the board members that their action was in violation of state laws governing the termination of a town manager.

Monday's emergency meeting was called as a result of that letter. At the meeting the board first voted to reconsider the firing. Referring to the earlier meeting, Mr. Hooper said, "I was infuriated. I guess maybe I acted hastily. I'd like the board to reconsider." The board then rescinded the firing but went on to vote against renewing Mrs. Mersereau's contract.

Mrs. Mersereau, who is a Rumford selectman and had served as that town's interim manager for a period of months in 1985, said she plans to "take it easy for awhile, then look for a job."

She said she still has warm feelings for many people in town, and she praised especially the work of Deputy Town Clerk Betty Benner and Road Foreman Percy Monk. She strongly suggested. however, that the town increase the number of selectmen to five. "You get a better variety of opinion," she said, "and you don't get locked into one person playing dictator."

Following Monday's meeting Mr. Hooper told the board that the Maine Municipal Association had suggested the option of asking former Town Clerk and Treasurer Pam House for her help in get ting the town through this new transition

It appears extremely unlikely the board will pursue this option, and when told of it Mrs. House laughed.

"Tell them I'm very happy to be out of it," she said. "Life's a breeze again, and I wouldn't get back into town government if they begged me."

The Black Cat

Once there was a girl named Melissa. She wanted a cat but her mother wouldn't let her have one because her mother was allergic to them. Melissa's friend's name was Linda. Linda has two cats. One was black and one was brown. Melissa liked to go to Linda's house and play with Linda and her cats. One day Melissa was at Linda's house wishing she could have a cat when Linda had a GREAT IDEA!!!

Melissa could adopt one of Linda's cats but keep it at Linda's house so it wouldn't bother her mother. Melissa picked the black one. She named it Blacky. She loved it! Melissa's mom was proud of both of the girls for solving Melissa's cat problem.

What's Happening

One evening I went upstairs. I lay down on my bed. I fell asleep very quickly. In the morning I woke up screaming and crying.

My mother came rushing upstairs and asked, "What's wrong?"

I said, "I had a bad dream." Mom said, "What was it about?"

I told my mother my dream.

In my dream I looked around my room. Then the clock struck seven o'clock. "MMMMMMMM!" I screamed. At once my room turned into a jungle and from a jungle into a forest! I screamed in my mind, "Help!"

I went downstairs. Mom said, "It is the day you go to grandma's house."

I said. "Yea! I love grandma's house."

I went to grandma's. Before I got there, her house turned into a village.

"Help, Mom! Help, Grandma!" I said. Later in my dream I got caught by Indians. "Help, Mom!" I said.

They threw me in a straight pole wigwam. I started to kick. They were planning to kill me, but I knew they couldn't.

I took a knife and cut the tipi wall open. I got loose. I thought, "Where is Mom?"

I found bows and arrows in a tipi. I shot an arrow at an Indian. I got him. I left him on the ground to warn the other Indians that I was loose.

Then I went to Groan and McGurn's. I called my mom up on the phone.

Mom came and got me. I said, "Hew!" That's that!

The Physical Cyclops

One evening my sister and I were working at the lab. My sister was working on a formula. We went home. She brought the formula with her.

During the night I drank the formula. In the morning I felt gross all over. I didn't have any bones. I was boneless. I felt like a physical cyclops. I went to the lab and worked on a formula to change me back to normal. I made one. But it didn't work. It made me colorful. I looked as beautiful as ever.

My sister made another formula and I turned back to normal. We went home. We celebrated by having a couple of friends over. I snuck back to the lab after everyone left. I made a formula. It started to steam. I ran outside and the lab blew up. That scared me. I was shocked. I never returned there again.

Brownie the Bear One day Brownie the Bear sat up in bed. He did not see his mom in the doorway. He said, "I don't want to get up."

"Oh, but you do," said Mom. Brownie said, "Mom, where are you?" "In the doorway," said Mom.

"Oh! Anyway, why do I want to get up?" "Remember the picnic today?" "Oh, yes," said Brownie. "I forgot." And he jumped out of bed and ran to take a shower and ran to the kitchen to help his mom pack a picnic lunch. At the picnic Brownie got lost. The way he got lost was that his mom fell asleep, and before he knew it he had wandered off into the forest and gotten lost. Back at the park his mom woke up and saw that Brownie was gone. She looked for him for a while, and then she noticed the footprints in the mud and she followed them. And in no time she found Brownie and they went home.

They lived happily ever after.

The Mothers Club met March 14, at the municipal building, with 10 members present.

The meeting was opened by President Nancy Wight. A prayer was read by Gilberte Seeley for member Persis Post, who has been in the hospital. Secretary Peggy Wight read the minutes of the last meeting and Treasurer June Swan gave the financial report.

Sunshine Lady reported that three cards had been sent to shut-ins. A successful White Elephant Sale was held. A motion was made to buy drapes for the municipal building. Thelma Lowery, Karlene Bachelder and Betsy Clark are on the committee to buy the drapes. Karlene Bachelder won the Mystery Prize. It was decided to hold a food sale in April.

It was also voted to write a letter to QW Fashions, inviting them to send a representative to the April 11 meeting. QW Fashions had written the Mothers Club asking if the club would like to have someone come to a meeting to put on a Fashion Show.

A discussion was held on trying to get the young mothers to start a program for children. The club would help in financing and other ways. Refreshments were served after the meeting by Olive Anderson, Cindy Moxcey and Peggy Wight. Sylvia Harrington, Sylvia Gray and Nancy Wight will be on the refreshment committee for the April meeting. Here is a description of legendary ac-

Russell's Ambulance, have expressed interest in purchasing the Dixfield branch

It was also suggested at the Newry Selectmen's meeting that Leslie Otten, of the Sunday River Ski Resort, might be interested in having his own ambulance service and contracting with the town to provide service to the other sections of Newry. Another meeting of the towns involved will be held at Mexico, March 17, and it is expected that Newry will be represented at that meeting. Final plans were made for the purchase of a computer and software and it is expected this will be ready to do the tax work, which has been done by Integrated Municipal Services for the past three years. It is hoped that the Assessors will be able to complete work on taxes and have tax bills out by the middle or last of June.

The Selectmen signed the dog warrant. The Town Clerk will now check for unlicensed dogs and the warrant will then be turned over to the dog control officer if any dogs are still unlicensed.

The Selectmen made the following appointments. Deputy Clerks, Lee Swan and Mary Tripp; Deputy Collector, June Swan; Health Officer, Warren Dennis: Plumbing Inspector, Building Inspector and Code Enforcement Officer, John Gauthier; Town and State Fire Warden. Alan Fleet; Town Fire Chief, Virgil Conkright; Town Agent, Roger E. Hanscom; Director Civil Emergency Preparedness. James Anderson; Registrar of Voters. June Swan; Election Warden, Roger E. Society Director Howe attended the Lafayette Dinner, sponsored by the Maine Historical Society at the Portland Club, on March 19. The dinner honored the visit to Portland, in 1825, of the Marquis de Lafayette. The evening featured a cast of characters (authenticated by the historic record) which included besides the honored guest, the governor of Maine Albion, Keith Parris (1788-1857), born in Hebron; President Allen of Bowdoin College; Stephen Longfellow and his son Henry Wadswroh Longfellow; plus several others. All of these historic figures were portryared by a cast arranged by Herb Adams, of Portland, and appeared in authentic period costume. The meal, typical of the era, was highlighted by 26 toasts and a string trio, under the direction of Carl Dimow.

Jane Chapin Sullivan, of Portland, has presented the Society with a variety of photographs that document the history of Bethel. Much appreciation is extended to her for this fine addition to the Society's collection.

Society Curator of Collections Randall Bennett is attempting to document the theory that the Methodist Church in Gorham, N.H., was designed by Bethel native Thomas Holt. Documentation of the proposition is needed. Thomas Holt will be discussed at the Society's May meeting by Earle G. The annual post birthday banquet was held at the Legion Hall in Locke Mills last Thursday, March 17, at 6:30 p.m. Due to an unfortunate conflict, the attendance was smaller than in former years, but nevertheless it was a most enjoyable occasion for all who were able to attend. A tasty roast beef supper was served, with potatoes, peas, carrots, cole slaw and home-made pies for dessert. Members of the Legion Auxiliary served the supper, which was provided through donations from the Auxiliary, the Sons of American

It was amusing to read of the Town

Although it was calm outwardly, insiders knew of the trauma, anger, fear, an-

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary will meet Monday, March 28, at 6:30 p.m. at the fire station. The auxiliary was very pleased at the turnout at the Town Meeting and the participation in the dinner put on by the auxiliary. The auxiliary is very fortunate in having a list of townspeople who are willing to cook. They are very much appreciated, as are those who come to eat. This year the workers at the hall were Flossie Bernier, Cheryl Young, Charlotte Kimball, Barbara Dunham and Lorraine Mills with Mary Stone and Denise Swan helping out during breaks of the Town Meeting.

The Greenwood Historical Society met this month with Mellen Kimball presiding and 15 members present. There were reports heard on the Dances, Booster Club and Building Committee. Two donations were accepted-one a child's lawn chair. Betty Prenie donated some of her yarn works, an afghan and a box of holders, to be used at their fundraiser. Refreshments were served and a Trivia game on the State of Maine was played. The teams played to a tie.

Mary Mills is somewhat more comfortable as she recuperates from a broken bone in her shoulder, suffered in a fall at her home.

As the April 15 state and federal income tax deadline approaches; many of my constituents have been concerned and somewhat disappointed about the bottom line of their completed tax form. There has also been confusion about the tax windfall money Maine received as a result of changes in the federal tax law. Some have suggested that the State has not made an earnest attempt to return this windfall money to Maine taxpayers. It should be made clear that the governor and the Legislature have worked together in a positive, non-partisan fashion to see that every cent of the tax windfall money is returned to Maine taxpayers. To date, the State has returned all of the $16 million of windfall funds it received during the 1986-87 tax year. During the next few weeks, I will use a portion of this column to explain the process we have followed to conform to federal tax changes.

When the Federal Tax Reform Act was passed in 1986, Maine legislators knew that the federal changes would result in a windfall to the State. As a chairman of the Joint Standing Committee on Taxation, I and other members of the Committee began work on several proposals aimed at returning this money to Maine taxpayers. Unfortunately, however, there was no way to tell how large the windfall would be.

Faced with this uncertainty, members of the Legislature and the governor had the possibility of forming a conservation to decide whether it would be wiser to estimate the size of the windfall and pass legislation based on that estimation or reported posting the town roads for wait until we could calculate the exact heavy traffic. MSAD #44 Superintendent's Newsletter

Dewaine B. Craig

There are a multitude of people involved in making decisions which affect our children's educational process. It is important that parents and other members the community understand who is responsible for what decisions.

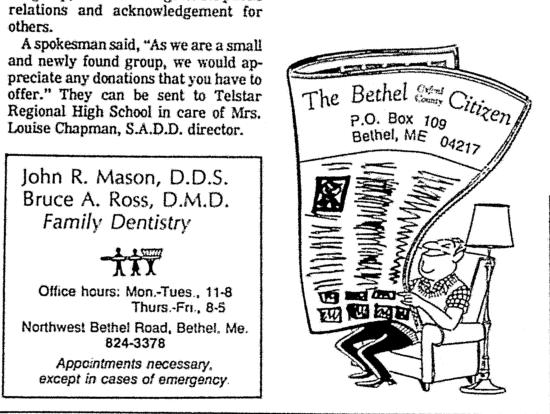

Let us begin with the School Board. Board members are elected by the public to represent the community in making general policy decisions. The Board also deals with such issues as budget, finance, legislation, hiring and firing of employees, and setting school boundaries.

The School Board works closely with the superintendent, whose job it is to carry out the board's policy decisions. Building principals report to the superintendent. They are responsible for the day-to-day logistics of their individual buildings. Classroom teachers report to their principal and are accountable for everyday classroom activities. Sponsors and coaches are responsible for their club and team members, but also report to their building administrators. Each school district is run in much the same manner as a corporation. The school board functions as the board of directors. The president (chairman) of the school board plays a role akin to that of the chairman of the board. When you wish to get to the root of a problem which has occurred in school, decide in advance who you believe is accountable for the decision which was made. In the case of day-to-day classroom activities, the responsible person is the classroom teacher or the building principal. The superintendent is esponsible for general policy enforcement. Simply contact the most appropriate person for answers to your questions. Just know that we are here to serve you. Anything we can do to help children, will serve all of us better.

Over the next four weeks I will be detailing the budget approval process and reviewing various components of the district's proposed FY '89 budget.

Pole, Paddle and Paw race this Saturday for foolhardy athletes

In the annual celebration of the local Rites of Spring—and as a warm-up for April Fool's Day-Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center will hold its Pole, Paddle and Paw Race this Saturday. Post time is 1:30 at the Newry ski touring center.

A tri-athalon competition, competitors are required to do one-third of the course on cross-country skis, one-third of the course in canoes on the swollen Sunday River, and one-third of the course on snowshoes. Racers compete in two-person teams in various classes, such as male, female, mixed, etc. There is no restriction on equipment, although racers must provide their own equipment, including personal flotation devices for the trip down

The race has developed into a fun-forall day, with costumes, silliness and lots of laughs. A goodly crowd always turns out to cheer on the competitors. An entry fee of $20 per team is payable upon registration, which will take place from 10:30 to noon on the day of the race. For more information, contact Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center, at

With sadness we recall
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart
That loved us well and true.
Ah, bitter was the trial to part From one so good as you.
You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.

Sunday River skiway plans to ski into May

As spring begins, and many New England ski areas curtail operations, Sunday River Ski Resort is in full operation, with all trails open and all lifts operating. If the present weather pattern of cold nights and warm days holds, as the National Weather Service's 30-day outlook forecasts, Sunday River plans to make snow well into April and ski into

May, officials there said. A $1 million investment in the snowmaking system last summer, plus cold early-November nights, enabled Sunday River to open for the season Nov. 8, 1987—the earliest opening in recent Sunday River history.

Snowmaking operations have continued around-the-clock, as weather has permitted, with the snowmaking crews making over 500,000 tons of snow.

Five hundred thousand tons of snow is the equivalent of 13.4 feet of snow on the 280 acres of snowmaking terrain, officials said. To put that total in perspective, the Sunday River snowmaking effort would cover the 26 square mile city of Portland with three inches of snow. Combined with the nine feet of natural snow received by Sunday River, this season's total snow accumulation ex-

Nobody Knows Western Maine Better Than Norway Savings

WE'VE BEEN GROWING WITH WESTERN MAINE SINCE 1866

Norway Savings Bank started as a small, home town community bank 122 years ago, and it still is today. That's a lot of years to get to know the Western Maine area inside and out...and know it thoroughly.

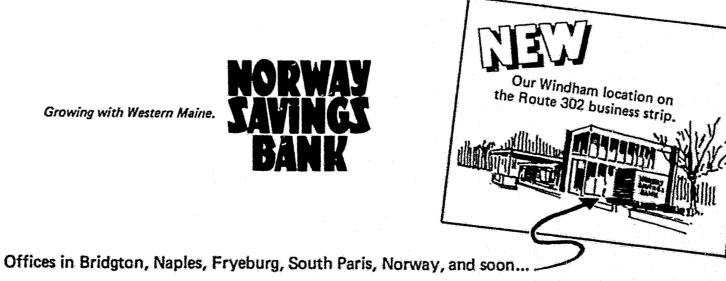

Why is this important to you?

Because Norway Savings Bank is a local Western Maine bank, you will be dealing with local folks who can give you the attention and concern you deserve...you will be getting help and advice from people with a sincere interest in your plans.

Norway Savings Bank's home office is right here in Western Maine rather than some distant city or state. Being a home town bank makes quite a difference...one you will appreciate.

Nobody knows Western Maine better than Norway Savings Bank!

Growing with Western Maine.

SUET AND SEEDS are still a diet staple for many local birds, but longer days and a warming winter sun promise a more varied menu to come. Here, a nuthatch picks at suet balls hung in a white walnut tree in Greenwood.

Helen Hayes for POLIOPLUS:

Have you heard of the wonderful Rotary project of a polio-free world? I personally know the devastation of polio because I lost a daughter to that dreaded disease some years ago. Even though the Rotarians are providing most of the money to purchase the polio vaccine, they want everyone to have the opportunity to participate in this warld-wide project. Will you help?

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your dai-

With Liberty and Justice for all. These are the closing words to our Pledge of Allegiance to our country's

One of the richest of blessings given to us by our founding fathers.

At times I am certain that we all wonder just how equal is justice. A hardened criminal accused of a heinous crime, evidence against him overwhelming, and yet by some technicality he goes free. Or perhaps though convicted and sentenced, he is in a few years out on probation or parole, seemingly by some easily persuaded parole board.

While the victims of crime sometimes go unprotected because the law cannot infringe upon the oppressors' rights. But this justice is not what I would like to talk about, but rather justice, justified, and justification in its spiritual sense. Justice is the act of administrating fairness (equality). Justification is an act of justifying or state of being justified. In a Biblical sense justification is the act of God's grace that makes a being acceptable to God in such that he becomes worthy of salvation. Let us think again of our seeming lack of justice I spoke of at the beginning; and then let us think of the words in the hymn "Are ye able?"

"Are ye able to remember when a thief lifts up his eyes, that his pardoned soul is worthy of a place in Paradise?" Then is spiritual justice too unfair-can a thief lift up his eyes and be admitted to Heaven? Is there any justice?

Let us review the story as told in the story in the Gospel of St. Luke chapter 23-of the two thieves that were crucified on either side of Christ. When one rallied upon him and mockingly said "If thou be Christ save thyself and us also." The other rebuked him, saying, "He is innocent but we guilty and are being justly Four Tiger Cub Scouts and their punished for our crimes. But he has done nothing amiss." Then he requested of Christ, "Remember me when thou comest into thy kingdon." And Christ said to press while cards were being printed and learned about the new typesetting him, "Today you will be with me in Paradise.'

A soft hearted parole board an injustice? Hardly so-He had received justification. Not for his works, not for his past record, but by his faith in Jesus Christ. He accepted Jesus as the Son of God-the saviour of mankind.

MEETING ON DEER HUNT. AT SOUTH PARIS, MARCH 30

The Maine Department of Inland Fisheries & Wildlife will hold an informational meeting in South Paris, March 30, to explain proposed antierless deer hunting restrictions for the 1988 deer hunting season. The meeting will be at the Oxford Hills High School, beginning at 7 p.m.

The meeting is one of several being held around the state in coming weeks. Following the informational meetings, the department will hold four public hearings at key locations throughout the state to discuss specific allocations of permits to take antlerless deer in the 17 deer management districts.

BEAR KILL UP 20 PERCENT

Maine's 1987 black bear hunting season ended with a 20 percent increase over the previous season in the number of bears killed. This increase came despite early denning by most bears, according to Wildlife Biologist Craig McLaughlin.

A total of 2,394 bears were killed during the 13-week season, compared to 1,955 bears in 1986, according to Mr. McLaughlin. Of the bears killed, Mainers accounted for only 41 percent of the kills. The remainder were killed by out-of-state hunters. Bowhunters-almost all from out-of-state-killed 176 bears.

Despite the higher number of kills last fall, Mr. McLaughlin predicts another big season is possible this coming fall due to the large bear population in the state. Maine's spring bear population is estimated at approximately 21,000 animals, he said.

This year's bear hunting season will run from Aug. 29 to Nov. 30.

The Apostle Paul in speaking of Christ to the men of Israel says in Acts 13:38-39 "Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins: And by him all that believe are justified from all things, from which you could not be justified from the law of Moses." Paul again in his epistle to the Romans further assures us of this justification. Romans 5:1 "Therefore being justified by faith. we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ" and verse 9 "Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him."

Thus if our civil justice might not be as perfect as we would like, we may rest assured that justice delivered by the perfect one will be true and correct.

ALLEN W. WEEKS

Dr. Allen W. Weeks, 72, of South Paris, died Tuesday, March 8, 1988, at the Ledgeview Memorial Home, in West Paris.

He was born in Parsonsfield, May 5, 1915, the son of Grover and Emma Moody Weeks. He graduated in 1933 from Kennett High School in Conway, N.H., and in 1938 graduated from the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy. He had just received his 50-year medallion from that school. He was an honorary staff member of the Osteopathic Hospital of Maine in Portland. Dr. Weeks had practiced one year at Mount Carmel, Pa., for one year in Lyndonville, Vt., four years in Buckfield, and in 1944, came to South Paris, where he practiced until his retirement on May 27, 1983.

He was a member of the Maine Osteopathic Association; the New England Osteopathic Association; the American Osteopathic Association; a past member and past president of Norway-Paris Kiwanis Club; a member of St. Catherine of Sienna Catholic Church: and a member of Everett Benson Council Knights of Columbus.

He married Helen L. Welton in 1938; she died in 1978. On Feb. 6, 1982, he married Arline E. Swan

Survivors include his wife of South Paris: two daughters, Janet M. Foster of Minneapolis, Minn., and Joanne E. Averill of Bangor; a son, Paul A. Weeks of Bangor: and eight grandchildren.

A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated last Saturday at St. Catherine of Sienna Church, in Norway. Spring interment in Norway-Pine Grove Cemetery, South Paris. Those who wish may contribute in his memory to American Parkinson Disease Association, 116 John St., New York, N.Y. 10038, or American Heart Association, P.O. Box 346. Augusta. or Arthritis Foundation, 37 Mill St., Brunswick.

YVONNE A. PATENAUDE

Yvonne A. Patenaude, 78, died last Thursday, March 17, 1988, at the Maine Medical Center, Portland, where she had been a patient one day.

She was born in Lawrence, Mass., May 15, 1909, the daughter of Henry and Delima Labrie Lavallee. She married Homer J. Patenaude and moved to Gilead in August of 1945. Mr. Patenaude died Feb. 22, 1983.

Mrs. Patenaude was employed by Newton and Tebbets, Inc., West Bethel, for several years and was a member of Our Lady of the Snows Catholic Church of Bethel and the American Association of Retired Persons.

Surviving are a daughter. Lorette Athearn, of Gray; a son, Maj. Joseph H. B. Patenaude, of Hanseom Air Force Base, Mass., a sister, Lucy Laclair of California; a brother, Henry Lavallee, of Tueson, Ariz.: and five grandsons. Funeral services were held Monday from Our Lady of the Snows Catholic Church, with burial in the Maine Veterans Memorial Cemetery, Augusta

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Elsie Hinkley on her birthday, March 26 The Old Rugged Cross was her favorite hymn. She lived for love and friendship by family and friends.

Sadly missed by daughters & sons

DESPITE THE ADVERSE DRIVING CONDITIONS on Sunday, March 13, about 40 people attended an afternoon of snowmobile rides and good home cooking at the home of Willard and Sylvia Wight in Newry. The Windy Valleys Snowmobile Club of Newry treated residents of Horizons Unlimited and the New Hope home in Rumford and Mexico to the snowmobile rides and lunch. The lunch included baked beans, lasagna, hot dogs, salads and dessert. This is the sixth year the club has entertained residents and their family members to a fun time in the snow.
